Elvira Kovachevich focuses her practice on commercial contract matters and AI governance and compliance. She drafts, reviews, and negotiates commercial agreements, including sales terms and conditions, distribution, license and SaaS agreements. Elvira advises clients on regulatory and compliance considerations affecting their operations. She helps them navigate complex U.S. legal issues arising from the movement of goods and services in an increasingly global economy, with a focus on practical solutions that manage risk and support business objectives.

Elvira's practice also includes advising on the legal implications related to Artificial Intelligence – the regulation of AI systems, and the complex legal and ethical questions surrounding emerging technologies. She received a certificate in "Artificial Intelligence: Implications for Business Strategy" from the MIT Sloan School of Management in 2024. With a background in legal innovation and technology, she is passionate about helping organizations navigate this evolving landscape with practical, business-focused solutions.

Prior to joining Masuda Funai, Elvira was an associate at a civil defense firm, and she was previously Legislative & Regulatory Counsel for a Fortune 100 insurance company, advising business leaders on the implications of AI regulatory propositions nationwide.
